

Abstract

Methods and apparatus for the solvent extraction of analytes from a sample are provided. A solvent system is used to extract analytes under elevated temperatures and constant regulated pressures under dynamic conditions. The extracted analytes may then be further analyzed.

[illegible]